OVERVIEW

This project presents the findings of an Open-Source Intelligence (OSINT) investigation conducted on a specific individual to determine whether Nyekwere TamunoTonye Tom served as a judge in an Indomie dance competition. The investigation relied solely on publicly available information obtained from online sources such as official websites, news articles, social media platforms, event pages, interviews, and other publicly accessible records.

TEAM COMPOSITION

This investigation was conducted by a team of six (6) personnel as part of the 24-Hour Threat Intelligence & OSINT CTF Challenge. All evidence was collected using ethical OSINT techniques and publicly available sources only.

Investigation Team (6 Personnel)

Role	Full Name
Team Lead / Lead Investigator	Nwattah Ikechukwu Riley
OSINT Analyst 2	Mark Wisdom
OSINT Analyst 3	Belema Jonathan
OSINT Analyst 4	Udoh F Kingsley
OSINT Analyst 5	Monima Opubo J
OSINT Analyst 6	Elvis Pokubo Princeway

Source Identification

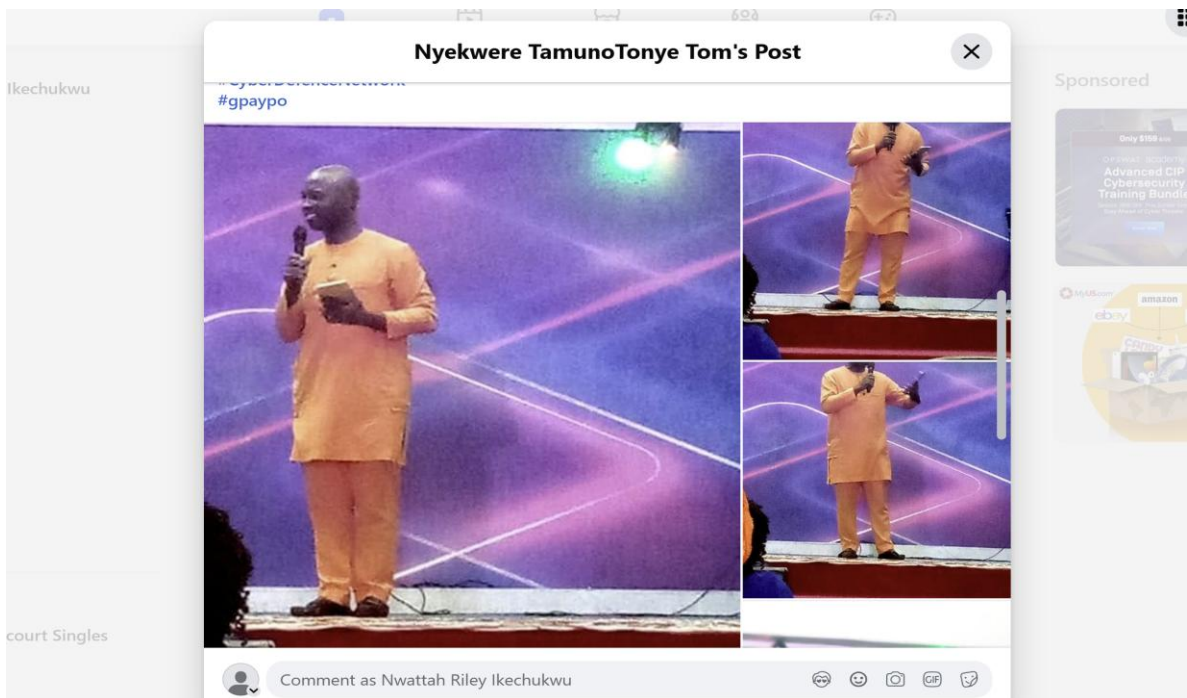

Five potential public sources were identified for the investigation based on their likelihood of containing relevant information about the claim. These sources included:

1. Google Search
2. The official Indomie website
3. Facebook
4. LinkedIn
5. HUMINT

Facebook was selected as the primary source because the subject is most active on the platform, making it the most likely source of relevant posts, photographs, videos, and event-related information. The remaining sources were identified as supplementary sources to corroborate or refute any findings obtained during the investigation.

Evidence Collection

Publicly available information was collected from the identified sources, with Facebook serving as the primary source. Relevant posts, photographs, event updates, videos, comments, and publicly accessible content relating to the claim were reviewed. Screenshots of potential evidence were captured, dated, and organized to preserve the information for subsequent analysis and verification. Additional searches were conducted on other identified public sources where necessary to support the investigation.

Source Validation

1. Google Search

Authority: Google Search is a search engine that indexes publicly available information from various websites. The credibility of the information depends on the original source.

Accuracy: Search results were reviewed to identify information from reputable and relevant websites.

Currency: Results were checked to ensure they were recent and relevant to the timeframe of the claim.

Objectivity: Information was assessed for neutrality, distinguishing factual reports from opinions or advertisements.

Corroboration: Relevant findings were compared with Facebook, the official Indomie website, Instagram, and LinkedIn.

2. Official Indomie Website

Authority: As the official website of the organization, it is considered an authoritative source for company announcements, campaigns, and events.

Accuracy: Information published on the website is presumed to be accurate and official.

Currency: Content was reviewed to ensure it was current and applicable to the investigation period.

Objectivity: The website provides official information, although promotional content was considered during the evaluation.

Corroboration: Information was compared with Facebook, Google Search, Instagram, and LinkedIn where possible.

3. Facebook (Primary Source)

Authority: The information was obtained from the subject's publicly accessible Facebook profile, which is the platform where the subject is most active.

Accuracy: Posts, photographs, videos, and event-related content were reviewed for consistency and relevance.

Currency: The dates of posts and events were examined to ensure they were relevant to the claim.

Objectivity: Content was evaluated to separate factual event information from personal opinions or promotional posts.

Corroboration: Relevant findings were cross-checked using Google Search, the official Indomie website, Instagram, and LinkedIn where available.

4. Instagram

Authority: Instagram profiles and posts were reviewed to identify publicly available information related to the subject or the event.

Accuracy: Images, captions, and event-related posts were assessed for consistency and authenticity.

Currency: Posts were checked to confirm they matched the relevant timeframe.

Objectivity: Content was evaluated to distinguish factual event coverage from promotional or personal posts.

Corroboration: Information was compared with Facebook, Google Search, the official Indomie website, and LinkedIn.

5. LinkedIn

Authority: LinkedIn was used to review the subject's professional profile and publicly available career information.

Accuracy: Profile details and professional activities were assessed for consistency and relevance.

Currency: Information was reviewed to determine whether it was up to date.

Objectivity: Professional information was considered relatively objective, while acknowledging that profiles are self-managed.

Corroboration: Relevant information was cross-checked with Facebook, Google Search, Instagram, and the official Indomie website.

Final Determination Summary – UNSUPPORTED

We searched 5+ source types (official Dufil/Indomie releases, Punch/The Nation/Legit.ng news, YouTube/Facebook event archives, and Google dorks for "TamunoTonye Tom" + Indomie + judge).

What we found:

Subject is real - public bio shows Program Coordinator at ICLDNG (Cyber Safety) - but no link to Indomie/Dance.

Indomie events (Heroes Awards, Jingle Dare, My Indomie Remix) list judges like Sound Sultan, Vector etc. - his name never appears.

Zero press release, news article, flyer, or social post corroborates the nomination.

Conclusion: No sufficient public evidence exists to support the claim. The claim is therefore UNSUPPORTED. This does not mean it's false, only that it cannot be verified through OSINT.
